Abstract

We develop a general approach to characterizing incentive compatibility in a setting of dynamic moral hazard with informational feedback. We use it to study the combined use of monetary and informational incentives and we characterize the optimal mix.